

Coaching is confidential, non-evaluative, and supportive. It is job-embedded, addressing issues teachers face daily in their classrooms. It is aligned to state standards, curriculum, and assessment. The key to a successful coaching program is a trusting relationship between teachers and coaches, but training and support from administrators are vital as well.

For resources on relationship building, click here .